Abstract

Delinquency in the urban area is increasing day by day and it was examined by the Criminologists, Sociologists, and Psychologists by given related theories. The number of theories likes strain, social control, opportunity, differential association, cultural conflict and especially ecological theory in Chicago reveals that the causes of delinquency are associated with industrialization; urbanization and immigration produce social disorganization. Broken window theory also reflects the maintaining and monitoring urban environment to prevent small crimes. This study aims to know the causes of delinquency in the urban area. In this study, unobtrusive research method was used to analyze the research material. The Result shows that parents had to work long hours for low wages, have no time to attend their children for the moral values. The children had to face the evils of rapid urbanization like competition and desire to get rich by means, aimlessness and aspiration for money and power which has given rise to juvenile delinquency. Mass media encouraging violent and criminal behaviour through movies, T.V. shows, cheap magazines pornographic material. Habits of substance abuse in children are also a result of delinquency. Many of these studies have informed the development of theories, policies, and practices that aim to reduce or prevent delinquency.
