on
'Recent Trends of Indian Historiography in the Light of Oral traditions' (28-29th July, 2020)

Convener – Dr. Pankaj Singh

Historians who claim scientific study of history consider those facts or events to be fanciful or legend, with no archaeological or archaeological evidence ò no matter how deep they were in the folklore. If the study of history is a journey of human consciousness and the effect it has on us, then we have to give more importance to those events which still exist in our consciousness. Folk evidences (Lokasakhyas) are also a major medium in the history writing of folk culture. Folk songs, folklore, proverbs, etc. are also living characters in the story of folk culture. Therefore, after 70 years of independence, we have an obligation to reinterpret history and writing history. Through this webinar, different participants from all over India had been inclined towards regional historiography. All the participants participating in this National Webinar had been benefited and understand the importance of oral sources in history writing. In the two days National Webinar several important aspects and relevance of oral traditions in historiography especially Rewriting Cultural History, Socio-Economic History, Nationalist History, Subaltern History, Regional History and Rewriting the History of the Epidemic in the light of oral traditions had been deeply discussed. Dr. Pankaj Singh Convened the National Seminar.
